SUMMARY

Email Marketing Specialist who builds email systems, not just email campaigns. I think about email as a qualification engine — every contact should sit in a defined lifecycle state, move through nurture tracks based on what they actually do, and get scored on behaviour rather than assumptions. I've built that kind of infrastructure from scratch, and I've operated it at scale: 85,000+ contacts, 245 campaigns, 90,103 emails delivered with a 0.019% spam complaint rate. I come from pharmacy, which means I learned to be precise before I learned to be creative — and I bring both to everything I build. If your email programme is a list and a send button, I turn it into a system.
